ADRC Helps DC Residents Own Their Future!

The DC Office on Aging ADRC is launching a new campaign, “Own Your Future,” geared toward residents 40 years of age and older to begin preparing for their long-term care in the District. “Own Your Future” is an effort between the District of Columbia Office on Aging and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) that provides information and resources on long-term care insurance, financial, and legal issues associated with aging, and numerous other long-term care planning topics.

The campaign targets all District residents between the ages of 40 and 70 and runs for an entire year. It includes public service announcements, District-specific resources, and a long-term care planning guide created by the District and HHS mailed directly to residents.

The District of Columbia joins more than 18 states selected by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to initiate the campaign, which provides long-term care planning guides that educates residents on the many options available to them. Individuals who order the Planning Tool Kit will also receive information about consumer resources for long term care planning and services in the District. For example, it will provide contact information for the DC Aging and Disability Resource Center, a long term care provider directory, a web-based resource for information about health and aging, and other resources.

Inside ADRC

This month's employee spotlight is on Alice Thompson. Ms. Thompson recently joined the ADRC as an Outreach Coordinator and brings to the ADRC a multitude of experience working with Washington, DC seniors. In her previous position at the Executive Office of the Mayor, Ms. Thompson worked as an Outreach and Service Specialist where she assisted Ward 5 seniors with issues such as housing, home modifications, property maintenance, and abuse and exploitation.

Ms. Thompson is a trusted public servant who has been known to provide exceptional customer service while expeditiously addressing the concerns of the seniors in her ward.

She considers herself an accomplished traveler having had the opportunity to travel both domestically and internationally including Hawaii, Alaska, Europe, South Africa, and most recently the West African countries of Senegal and Ghana.

Ms. Thompson plans to use all the resources at her disposal to educate the citizens of Washington, DC on the ADRC and how it can be of assistance to them.

The DC ADRC assists the District's elderly, persons with disabilities, their caregivers, and their families in maximizing independence and improving quality of life by linking people with a range of quality services.

National Alcohol & Drug Addiction Recovery Month

September is nationally recognized as National Alcohol & Drug Addiction Recovery Month. The primary purpose of Recovery Month is to recognize and pay tribute to those who are in recovery along with acknowledging the many accomplishments of the substance abuse treatment providers. In addition, Recovery Month strives to raise public awareness about the positive outcomes substance abuse treatment can have on the individual, their loved ones, and society. If you know someone who is in need of substance abuse treatment or recovery services, please have them to contact the Addiction, Prevention, and Recovery Administration (APRA) under the Department of Health at (202) 727-8473 (Intake). APRA is located at 1300 First St. NE. Please visit their website, www.doh.dc.gov, for more information.
